For Immediate Release

Media Contact: Laurie Klein, info@laurieklein.com

We are pleased to announce that photographer and instructor, Laurie Klein, has announced that she will be hosting Boutique Workshops locally and around the world. The purpose of these workshops are to help photographers and other creatives to flex their creative muscles, give themselves permission to explore and to find their visual voice through self empowerment.

The grand opening workshop, hosted at The Pines on Fire Island, NY, went off without a hitch and her inspired students have already signed up for her next workshop (being hosted by 4urranch.com in Creede, CO.) and look forward to working with Laurie in the many unique locales that she will be announcing shortly.

Laurie has been teaching photography, infrared photography, photographing the female form, and finding your visual voice for over 20 years and around the world. Just in the past year, Laurie has taught at many photographic venues to include: Maine Media, Santa Fe Photographic Workshops, Peter's Valley School of Craft, B&H Photo in NYC, and several other venues. Laurie has also hosted excursions in Cuba, France, and Canada internationally and New Mexico, Connecticut, California, Massachusetts, Texas, New York, and Rhode Island domestically where her students were able to explore a unique location and their own artistic style.

For many years Laurie has been mentoring young people in order to give them the encouragement to follow their creative dreams.

About Laurie Klein

She is known today as both a successful photographer with a signature style, and an inspirational photographic educator. Her life long commitment to the art of photography began over 40 years ago in high school and sought to perfect her craft by receiving her B.F.A from the photography program at R.I.T. Later she graduated from Ohio University with her M.F.A. during which time she was mentored by Ansel Adams, who taught her that discovering her own artistic voice was the gateway to becoming a fine artist.

"Her style is unique, combining a wonderful ability for composition and a sensitivity to her subjects that will carry her to the top of her field. I can't teach the way she sees and feels!" - Ansel Adams.

Laurie has authored Infrared Photography: Artistic Techniques for Brilliant Images published by Amherst Media 2016, Photographing the Female Form with Digital Infrared published by Amherst Media 2014, and Hand Coloring Black & White Photography published by Rockport 1999. Today, she is recognized mostly for her signature infrared photography. Her work is held in private collections and museums. She is sought after for her exclusive commissions and extraordinary photographic workshops.
